Rancho La Puerta in Tecate, Mexico, is hosting a week-long Dia de los Muertos celebration from Oct. 25 to Nov. 1, 2025. This Mexican holiday honors departed loved ones through spiritual and cultural traditions, and now your clients will have a chance to create altars of their own with marigolds, photos and offerings, while exploring the symbolism of calaveras in various forms.

The resort offers guided classes and presentations to deepen the experience. Featured speakers include cultural scholar Jose Guadalupe Flores, Ph.D., storyteller Joel ben Izzy and Luisa McCarthy, director of San Diego County's largest Day of the Dead event. Emmy Award-winning composer Gary Malkin and spiritual guide Hope Fitzgerald will also share insights.

Activities focus on remembrance, reflection and celebrating the continuity of life. This immersive week offers a unique opportunity for guests to engage with Mexican cultural practices while honoring their own connections to loved ones who have passed away.
